Why is it important for me to know about the Protective practices?

Everyone in an education or care setting should be made aware of the standards of behaviour that are needed to maintain a safe and respectful environment. Children are taught to recognize unsafe behaviour as part of the child protection curriculum and to talk with adults about their concerns. Staff members and volunteers receive training on the Protective practices and are required to report inappropriate adult behaviour to their principal or director. If you decide to volunteer in the future you will be expected to follow these practices.

As a parent you can help to support these expectations by taking action if you see or hear about adult behaviours that you think are not in keeping with the Protective practices. You may be the only adult to observe or hear about inappropriate behaviour so you have an important role in alerting the principal or director as soon as possible, as outlined below.

What should I do if I have concerns about an adult’s behaviour?

Talk to the principal or director of the school or children’s service. Raising your concern will allow the principal or director to explore the matter properly and ensure the right response is made. If you feel uncomfortable to have this conversation on your own, ask a trusted friend or member of staff to accompany you. It is very important that the principal or director hears the concern directly so it can be acted on quickly.

What if my concern is about the principal or director?

You should raise your concern through the following:

What happens to the adult when a concern is raised?

Depending on what is reported and investigated it may mean the adult is given a formal documented instruction about expected conduct, or it may result in an employee being dismissed or a volunteer’s service being discontinued. Criminal matters are investigated by police and when this is the case all education sectors follow the guidelines Managing Allegations of Sexual Misconduct which can be found at your school or service or from the department’s website www.education.sa.gov.au.

What if I’m unhappy with the way the school or service has dealt with my concern?

Keeping schools and children’s services safe environments for all

The Protective practices describe safe and respectful behaviour boundaries for staff and volunteers in their relationships with children and young people.

As a parent you are encouraged to be aware of the Protective practices and to support the staff and volunteers of your child’s school or care setting in ensuring they are followed.

Access the full guidelines from your school or care setting or from the Department for Education website: www.education.sa.gov.au
What are Protective practices?

Protective practices are standards of behaviour that staff and volunteers are expected to meet in their interactions with children and young people. They represent a code of conduct that helps make schools and children’s services safe places for everyone involved.

Why are they needed?

Behaviour boundaries are important for everyone. In schools and children’s services adults are expected to behave in ways that are always protective of children and young people. The Protective practices help remove any confusion about which adult behaviours are protective and which are considered inappropriate.

What do they cover?

They cover appropriate physical contact and acceptable ways of communicating and interacting with children and young people. A summary follows of behaviours that are considered inappropriate.

Who do they apply to?

They apply to all adults working or volunteering in Government, Catholic, or Independent education or care settings.

How are staff and volunteers informed about the Protective practices requirements?

All adults working or volunteering in education and children’s services receive compulsory child protection training or induction which includes the Protective practices requirements.

Do the Protective practices ban adults from touching children and young people?

No they do not ban touching. They describe respectful and safe ways for adults to use touch when it is appropriate to provide care, encouragement, congratulations or protection to a child or young person.

When were they developed?

They were first developed in 2005. The Government, Catholic and Independent education sectors update them if new issues emerge such as the impact of social network sites, or when there are changes to legislation such as discrimination laws.

What do they cover?
